The Sicily of the 5 Regional Parks and the 77 Natural Reserves, of the sweet and rolling hills, green of citrus, carob and pistachios, where exotic plants bloom. The Sicily of snow-capped peaks and black volcanoes and perfumed with citrus and spice, a fertile land with a sea of fish, a great cuisine in the heart of the Mediterranean that mixes cultures as if they were ingredients, elevating the culinary art to true science. Sicily is the 2nd largest producer of Wine in Italy.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

With the growth in tourism and hospitality industry, there is also a growth in the understanding of the various dimensions involved in it, particularly the service dimension and the industry aspects. In this new understanding this industry has emerged as an extremely vital and strategic activity having immense potential for employment generation and earning foreign exchange – two core elements in a developing economy such as ours. At the same time we cannot ignore the fact that without proper monitoring tourism can be a double-edged sword. While it has the immense potential to be in the forefront of socio-economic development it can also put tremendous pressure on environment and socio culture ethos. Moreover new and socially untenable forms of tourism are also raising their ugly head. Thus the issue of cultural, social and economic sustainability of tourism also needs close and constant attention. This conference seeks to fulfil this need and has thus engaged with issues ranging from issues related with sustainability development, marketing and branding, contemporary practices, and human resource development.

Another important aspect of the growing industry is the changing concepts in marketing. Rapid developments in information technology and the internet have had an amazing impact on the promotion of industry. This has had tremendous effect on the choice of holiday destinations. Such a choice has become a significant lifestyle indicator for today’s demanding consumers. The places where tourists choose to spend their increasingly limited vacation time and hard earned money have to be emotionally appealing with high conversational and celebrity value. The World Tourism Organization talks about this in terms of seeing destinations as tomorrow’s fashion items, suggesting that ‘the next century will make the emergence of tourism destinations as a fashion accessory’. One session of this conference shall discuss all the issue related to behavioural aspects of marketing.

Yet another vital issue which will be examined in this conference is the subject of human resource development. The requirements of modern-day tourism necessitate the development of specialised human resources through formal education and skill building. The importance of tourism and hospitality education has been recognized all over the world for many years now. It is also recognised that formal education is important in areas connected with tourism activity. These and a host of related issues concerning tourism & hospitality industry which will be discussed in this conference. Organizers believe that this conference will be is a significant contribution towards future development and planning purposes not only for tourism and hospitality industry but also for other tourism related activities and those who are interested in the related research.
